

Roger Ison-Haug Endpoint Security & Altiris Business Unit Manager, Symantec Norway

Roger Ison-Haug joined Symantec 2006, managing some of the major partners for Symantec. When Altiris was acquired by Symantec, Roger Ison-Haug was promoted to lead the new endpoint security and management business unit in Symantec in Norway.

Having started his career in the IT industry in 1994, Mr. Ison-Haug has an extensive background within IT security and business development and has a profound interest for IT and business enablement. Prior to joining Symantec he was product manager for Landis bv, as well as partner manager and security spokesperson for Computer Associates.

Mr. Ison-Haug's primary areas of expertise are cost and power reductions of corporate IT. Mr. Ison-Haug sees a great need for organizations to reduce pollution and a great opportunity for positive change and smarter use of technology, in IT supporting business needs.

Mr. Ison-Haug's educational background lies in marketing, logistics and computer science.